You have described race condition in a really detailed way that includes both examples and how it might be exploited. You have chosen to write to an audience that have background with IT, so it might be difficult for an none-technical person to understand it, which is fine for this assignment.

Both of your presented examples are good. You have gone really into depth on the your Electronic ID-solution and given us background information on exactly what happends when you are supposed to for example log in.

I really like that you had taken time to add where the "time of check" and the "time of use" is in the psydocode. Makes it easy to follow up. What I think made this assignment special is that you have actually searched up an countermeasurement I didn't know of, so I really learned something from it.

Overall; this is a really well written assignment which deserve a PASS :D
